

Photoprotection of parenteral nutrition: an international perspective

Gil Hardy <sup>1</sup>, Peter D Austin <sup>2</sup>, Melvyn R Davis <sup>3</sup>, William Manzanares <sup>4</sup>, Stefan F Mühlebach <sup>5</sup>, Magdalena Pietka <sup>6</sup>, Michael C Allwood <sup>7</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Ipanema Research Trust, Auckland, New Zealand.

<sup>2</sup> Pharmacy Department, Oxford University Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust and University College, London, UK.

<sup>3</sup> Mel Davis and Associates, Sydney, Australia.

<sup>4</sup> Department of Critical Care, University Hospital, Faculty of Medicine, Universidad de la República UdelaR, Uruguay.

<sup>5</sup> Department of Pharmaceutical Sciences, Division of Clinical Pharmacy & Epidemiology/Hospital Pharmacy, University of Basel, Switzerland.

<sup>6</sup> Pharmacy Department, Stanley Dudrick's Memorial Hospital, Skawina, Poland.

<sup>7</sup> Biopharma Stability Testing Laboratory, BioCity Nottingham, Nottingham, UK.

No abstract available

Keywords: light protection; micronutrients; parenteral nutrition; photooxidation; stability

Published in: Nutr Clin Pract.2021;36(5):921-925. doi: 10.1002/ncp.10773. Epub 2021 Sep 8.
Contact: stefan.muehlebach@unibas.ch